ATTENTION TENANTS!

Next weekend on September 9th and 10th, there will be workers in our building. Following the recent front and back door camera installation, they will come to take care of the promised colour change of the hallway walls. Because the painters will need our lift, please, only use it when they aren't using it. Or, use the stairs that weekend if possible. You will find the exact work schedule for each floor in your letter boxes. Remember that the boxes will be changed for new ones two days before the workers arrive, as agreed. Please also note that the newly installed front and back door cameras will be out of order for a while due to the work on September 9th and 10th. Thank you.

Last week a woman from Fraddon, Cornwall got up at 6 am to work in the garden before it got too hot. She took her new puppy with her to let it play. While she was working, she suddenly heard a strange noise. Her puppy must have heard the noise, too, because it started running towards the sound. The woman ran after the noise as well and got a shock when she discovered that a newborn puppy was making the noise. It was clear that the puppy had been in the garden overnight. The woman phoned her neighbour to ask him if he was searching for a puppy. He had no idea what she was talking about until he discovered that his dog, Sadie, had given birth to puppies in the night. Somehow one got into the woman's garden. Her neighbour arrived in a minute, thanked her for calling him, and went home with the puppy to take care of it. If you want any of his dog's puppies, call 1726 862929. The owner will be giving them away instead of selling them.

The Art in Island

In the Philippines, there is a museum called The Art in Island which was opened by a group of Korean artists, and it has one hundred unique 3D pictures from all over the world. Each picture was created by photographing the original paintings from specific positions to create an optical illusion. This makes you think you've become a part of the picture when you look at it! Each room shows a different theme. There are even some classics such as Water Lilies by Claude Monet, but, of course, these are versions made for the museum. In the future the museum hopes to expand its collections with some unique Korean art, which is missing at the moment. The museum will also include workshops to teach art students how to make 3D pictures.

Last Year's Drive Home (blog by Vanessa Argyl)

Every year my husband and I meet my family at my parents' house on December 24th and we always go home on the 27th in the morning. Last year we left on the usual day, but after lunch. It was Tuesday and we didn't expect any traffic jams, and indeed there weren't any. But what we also didn't expect was the weather that day. Two hours after leaving, it started snowing heavily. We had to stop by the roadside and wait for the snowstorm to end. Soon we realised we would have to wait there until morning. Would you believe that we spent the 28th there as well waiting for firemen to help us get home? When they finally got to us on Thursday morning, we were cold and hungry. They quickly warmed us up, gave us some snacks and drove us home. We had to wait until Friday the 30th to be able to get our car back too. I wish we had left my parents' house on the 27th in the morning as usual. I am sure we would have arrived home that day and not on the 29th.

What did you learn about yourself during the two-month quarantine?

Claire Matthews, 17, Lakeside High School, New Hampshire:

Well, I had just started to make friends at my new school, so when my new social life stopped due to the pandemic, I was upset. See, I enjoyed being alone after school, doing homework and such. But being alone most of the day wasn't enjoyable at all. It surprised me how much it bothered me. On the other hand, I didn't have to set my alarm clock for 6:00 am for two months. It was great, because being up so early has always been a nightmare for me. Unfortunately getting up early is back now. However, I deal with it much better now because I discovered that I'm not bad at handling stressful situations at all. See, I created a daily schedule and followed it the whole time. That made me calm. To reduce stress, I also tried eating only healthy meals and avoiding things like hamburgers, chips, chocolate, cakes, and cookies. I realised that I could live without hamburgers and chips, but not the other three things. I couldn't live without them.

(CZVV)

29 What did Claire learn about herself during the two-month quarantine?

She learnt that:

- A) she enjoys being alone.
- B) she can give up sweets.
- C) she likes getting up early.
- D) she can deal with stress well.

The Comcast Building

30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City

BASIC INFO → The Comcast Building is a skyscraper, which has 66 floors and it is best known as the home of the NBC television network, and for the Rainbow Room. It is the 28th tallest building in New York City and the 60th tallest in the United States. It is 400 feet shorter than the Empire State Building which lies south of the Comcast Building.

OWNERS → The construction of the building started in 1932 when businessman John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his family's company finally found the land to build it on. When it was finished, its owners – the Rockefeller family company – rented some space to NBC, an entertainment company. In 2000, after almost seventy years of owning the skyscraper, the Rockefellers sold the building to Tishman Speyer Properties, a real estate company, which has owned it ever since. The Comcast Building is one of the most desired locations for companies looking for office space in New York City's most prestigious business district. British company Deloitte, for example, moved into the skyscraper recently.

The owner has the whole building checked regularly. The last time was in 2019, five years after the last total repair of the building, which was carried out in 2014.

MOST FAMOUS PLACES IN THE COMCAST BUILDING

THE ROOF

This is a place from which visitors have an amazing view of the city. Visitors can only use one lift to get there. It starts on the ground floor and goes directly to the roof. The other 59 lifts in the building are only used to get to the other floors. On a clear day, visitors can even see planes approaching and leaving John F. Kennedy International Airport. If the roof was a few feet higher, the airport itself could be seen as well. In 1960, a 400-pound weather radar was installed on the very top of the Comcast Building. It was used for weather forecasts for thirty-five years. Although it is now out of service, it remains in its original location due to its historic value.

THE RAINBOW ROOM

This is a restaurant on the top floor of the 66-floor building. It is listed among the most popular places for weddings in New York City. On weekdays, it opens at 4:30 pm and closes at midnight. During opening hours, the Rainbow Room serves dinner to more than a thousand visitors every day. However, there were four times when the famous restaurant could not do that, either due to renovation or financial difficulties. The last time this happened was ten years ago. Let's hope it doesn't have to close again soon.

NBC STUDIOS

These are TV studios where many top talk shows are filmed. Many viewers think that the studios are on the top floors of the 66-floor building. That is because a large picture of the view from the top of the building is often used as a background for the shows. However, the studios fill the building's first fourteen floors. The studios are open to the public from 8:20 am to 2:20 pm on weekdays. The number of tickets per hour is limited to 150 so that the total number of visitors a day is less than one thousand. Tours of the studios actually began as early as 1933, soon after the studios started working. The NBC studios have always been open to the public except for one year in which tours weren't possible. However, the studios have never stopped working for a single day in its 90-year history.

In 2012, Hurricane Sandy hit New York City and damaged a lot of buildings. The NBC studios staff reported on the hurricane. They did so despite the danger of being in the Comcast Building at that time. The skyscraper itself remained whole and all right although it was expected to be damaged by strong winds.

Fan of the 1810s Only Wears Historical Clothes

Zack Pinsent, a 25-year-old man from Brighton, has chosen to reject modern fast fashion and only wear 1810s-style clothing. The 1810s was a period of ten years known as the Regency era so Zack is sometimes called a Regency-era gentleman. Zack burned his last pair of jeans in a symbolic fire when he was 14, and he has been dressing as a Regency-era gentleman ever since. What's more, he has been designing clothes for other fans of history since he was 19. After 11 years of wearing 1810s-style clothing Zack is confident and says that wearing these clothes is the only way he can express himself in the 21st century.

Naturally, people look at Zack Pinsent in his 1810s-style clothing everywhere he goes. They often ask him whether he loves history or whether he is a history professor. They think that is the reason why Zack dresses as a Regency-era gentleman. Zack says, 'The attention feels good although sometimes I become tired of answering people's questions. The reason for my initial choice to put on historical clothes had nothing to do with a love of history. It was quite a simple one. My family and I found a box full of my great-grandfather's old suits from the Regency era after we had moved house. I found that the suits fit me well, so I started wearing them. I was surprised how comfortable I felt in them, I hadn't expected that. In the end, I wore nothing else. Wearing historical clothing is one of my greatest pleasures today. I can't imagine feeling comfortable in modern clothes.'

Zack remembers a surprising moment from his school days, when he was voted the best-dressed person of the year. He won despite never wearing modern clothes to school like everybody else. However, there was one day when people could see Zack in jeans and a leather jacket. This was at a great 1950s-themed party at his classmate's house. Zack bought the clothes especially for the occasion. He went shopping for the set of clothes with his best friend, who promised to buy it from Zack after the party. Interestingly, Zack saw his best friend a week ago. Zack was walking in a park in his usual clothes when he saw his best friend wearing the same outfit they had bought together. The jeans and the jacket remain the last pieces of modern clothing that Zack has worn.

As a child, Zack didn't care about fashion and his mother chose or made all his clothes. When he began wearing 1810s-style clothing, he was lucky to have an uncle who knew a lot about history and historical clothes. He became Zack's advisor. After wearing out his first suits, Zack now designs and hand-sews all his sets of clothes himself. Sometimes it takes him ten months to make them perfect. Zack believes that his designs fit even better than those made by a professional tailor.

And how do people usually react to Zack? He says, 'I got used to the looks I receive, and I know that people aren't studying me to make me feel embarrassed. At first, I was worried that people would be rude or upset by what I wear in public places. To my surprise, this has never been the case. Everywhere I go, people are keen on knowing more about my clothes. But I must say that I still feel a little nervous when a huge group of football fans walk towards me. My natural reaction is to look down in a shy manner to prevent aggressive behaviour. However, football fans have always been kind and asked me questions about the clothes.'
